ABSTRACT

A method and a device for transferring capability information, which method comprises storing (61) the capability information of the device; placing (63) said capability information in the payload part of a message before the message is transferred to a protocol stack, the method comprising a header part and a payload part; processing (64) the message containing the capability information according to a specific protocol stack; and transmitting (65) said message.

(Figure 5)